By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

How To Improve Your Situation

A beautiful place near Winter Haven, Florida, is a favorite spot of mine. It is called Cypress Gardens and you may have seen it in the first Cinerama film.

Cypress Gardens is run by a dynamic man named Dick Pope. He had been in the real estate business in Winter Haven and found it hard going in those depression days. Then one day, he happened to be out around the swamps near town and noticed a man painting pictures of old gnarled cypress trees growing out of the water. Trees such as these are a familiar sight in Central Florida.

"Why are you painting those old trees?" Pope asked the man curiously.

"Because those are the most beautiful trees I ever saw," the artist answered.

Pope looked again, this time more thoughtfully, and began to see in those familiar old trees the same beauty the artist had found in them. And the thought came to him that, if they were so beautiful, why wouldn't people come from everywhere to see them and get the same inspiration.

SO HE BOUGHT that swamp-land. He cut paths and made romantic lagoons through it so that people might get close to the natural wonderland he created. He found a magnificent azalea in the center of his cypresses; he planted flame vines, palms and tropical plants. Over the limpid water of the lagoons rustic bridges were built. He installed motor boats to carry thrilled beauty seekers through the flower-lined canals. And so, this erstwhile swamp was transformed into one of the most exciting beauty spots in America.

Lots of people had looked at that swamp and those trees, but all they saw was a swamp and tangled trees. Dick Pope took a second look — his imagination began to function, and then he saw Cypress Gardens.

Now he brings the greatest athletes to give demonstrations of aquaplaning and water-skiing. He is always coming up with fresh ideas, so much so that it intrigued my interest. I once asked him his secret.

"I'VE TRAINED MYSELF to think big," he said. "When a thought comes to mind about business, I try to think big about it, to visualize its greatest possibilities. The bigger one thinks, the bigger are things likely to become for everything is just about the way we think of it."

That is really a great idea. Think big about everything — about your business, about your children, your objectives, your life. Think big about the service you can render. And so, to improve your situation, just start to think, keep thinking, and always think big. Large concepts, deep insights and big purposes will improve anybody's status in life.

MOST SITUATIONS in which we find ourselves are primarily but reflections of ourselves. If you are nervous, irritable and tense, it is likely that the entire situation around you may become similar in character. If you are negative and pessimistic, conditions around you will tend to be negative. If you think little, your psychology reproduces such thoughts in small results. It is said that birds of a feather flock together. So do situations.

Of course, there are people who live blameless lives, and yet things seem to go wrong with them. But such ineffective persons probably have some basic error or defeatist attitudes in their thinking. Generally speaking, it is true that the more you change your thinking for the better, the more certainly you will change the situation around you.

Your future is determined by the slant of your mind and the skill with which you set about improving yourself and conditions. I hear people complain, "There is no future in this town or in this job." To them, every good thing is in that mythical somewhere else. But the plain fact is that your future is in your thoughts and in your willingness to work. You can think yourself into a small future. But by big thinking, big acting, and large faith you can have a great life.

The fruits have been gathered from the fields. They lay about her, rich and ripe, in the autumn sun that is still warm. Never has the sky been so blue, never have the distant mountains been more enchanting with their play of purple shadows. Yet she concentrates on the work at hand, peeling an apple with still dextrous fingers as she rocks on into the long afternoon of life.

She is a simple person. Her life has not been easy. There have been moments of great happiness . . . and of great sadness; times of drought and times when the harvest came in a kind of golden glory from the bounty of the earth.

But through it all she has had a nourishment that has nothing to do with crops and weather, a kind of sustenance that has stood by her at all times and in all seasons . . . FAITH. Hers is a complete Faith in God and in her Church, a Faith that has made her life happy and useful . . . a Faith that has furnished food for the soul.

Ignorance Is Not Bliss

Corporate wealth is being used in many ways to add to the income of voluntary colleges and universities, as their expenses keep rising faster than their yield from endowment.

The corporations are thinking and acting in the right direction, and the most admirable part of their willingness to accept responsibility for voluntary education is the breadth of thinking behind their decisions.

It is easy to understand why a chemical manufacturing concern would be interested in educating young men and women for careers in chemistry; much corporate help is being given on that basis of enlightened selfishness.

But that is not the only basis. In announcing the formation of the Esso Education Foundation the other day, Standard Oil of New Jersey and a group of affiliated companies acknowledged the need for specialized education, then added:

"An even more basic function of American colleges and universities, however, is to help develop a nation of informed citizens, and thus foster the ability and the will to achieve increasingly a society that offers freedom, opportunity and dignity to all its members. From such informed citizens will come many of the leaders America must have — in the nation, in the community and in business."

Ignorance is not bliss any more. It never was. Ignorance is an invitation to the kind of misrepresentation and exploitation that makes slaves of men who were born free.

Security With Mercy

Navy Secretary Thomas has given a further boost to the Eisenhower administration's security policy by ruling that Ensign Eugene W. Landy must be given his Naval Reserve commission.

Landy is the Merchant Marine Academy graduate who was denied a commission last August after completing his course with special distinction, because his mother admitted he had been a former member of the Communist party. A special review board set up by Secretary Thomas upheld the decision to withhold the young man's commission.

Secretary Thomas has tempered security with mercy, on the grounds that there is a substantial difference between a voluntary relationship with a Communist and the relationship of a Communist mother and a son who has made it clear he never approved of his mother's politics.

The dilemma that has baffled the federal government ever since it abandoned a soft policy on security against the Communist conspiracy has been how to administer a hard policy without trampling on individual rights.

There always will be mistakes under a hard policy — errors of commission instead of the errors of omission that go with a soft policy. But the Eisenhower administration has tried to correct its errors promptly. The reversal by Navy Secretary Thomas is the latest in a series of executive decisions to redress wrongs done to individuals under a hard policy of security.

Bingo In New York

Nowhere in the country has the form of gambling called bingo caused more trouble than in New York City and the surrounding metropolitan area. Trouble now is about to be doubled by a legal dodge reminiscent of the one formerly used in Ohio to get around a constitutional ban on all gambling.

In Ohio, the hair-splitters claimed that bingo was not gambling if no profit was taken — a dodge that enabled professional gamblers to run bingo games by paying themselves fabulous expenses, instead of taking profits.

In New York, the hair-splitters are claiming that bingo is not gambling if it is done in connection with some form of entertainment. The New York state constitution is as specific in banning all forms of gambling as Ohio's constitution.

The bingo fight in New York involves religious and fraternal groups which have insisted on running bingo games, against the opposition of other religious groups just as insistent on upholding the constitutional ban on gambling.

Public officials — including judicial officials — are caught between the upper and nether millstones of political pressure. They know professional gamblers will take advantage of leniency in interpreting the law and leniency in enforcing it. But they fear the opposition of the pressure groups that say the ban on gambling simply does not apply to one kind of gambling they rely on heavily to raise money for worthy purposes.

So the controversy rages. New York City Council has been informed that professional gamblers are prepared to take full advantage of any legal loophole — and on that point there can be no argument. For every worthy dollar yielded by bingo, the gamblers always stand ready to take ten times as many unworthy ones.

Singleness Of Purpose

Religion In And On The Job

By EUGENE CARR

A young married woman was asked why she worked at such an ordinary job when her education and training qualified her for a much better salary and position.

"I don't want a better job," she replied. "I'm working to help my husband get through college, and I do not want a job to become more important to me than my reason for working."

This young lady had managed to grasp, at a nearly age, one of the truly significant fundamentals of life. She had set her mind on a single purpose. To her, it was a worthy one, and she was applying herself solely to accomplishing it. She would not be swayed from it.

She had been offered better jobs at more money. But, somehow, she knew a more attractive position, with the added comforts and pleasures it would bring, might distract her from her prime objective — her husband's education. She could have been a successful business woman. That wasn't what she wanted. She wanted a successful husband.

Today's world is full of glamorous appeals and offers that tend to entice us away from our avowed purposes and disrupt our plans for doing the things we know we ought to do. Eliminating and discarding these extraneous influences from our lives is one of the most difficult tasks we face up to, but this we must do, if we are to avoid being sidetracked constantly from our ultimate aims.

We must remember that a diamond of real value, no matter how small, need not be set in a cluster of miscellaneous filigree to be appreciated. The value is in the main stone, not the setting.

A melody of lasting beauty does not need a special instrumental arrangement in order to attract listeners. It bears repeating over and over again just as the composer conceived it.

A worthwhile purpose, like a perfect stone, requires no embellishment. A good motive, like a pure melody, becomes richer with every expression as it sets a clear and distinct theme and holds it.

We need very much to lift our purposes up and above the noise and confusion of the other melodies about us, and let the light of deep conviction and faith come in around them, and shine through the clean-cut facets of worthiness, willingness, selfless desire, and sincere determination.

Once we have shaken ourselves free from distractions and disruptions, we find, like the young married woman working to help her husband through college, that a single worthy purpose, unadorned and enduring, adds untold power to our hopes.

Western World's Worry

While Secretary Dulles prophesied that the wave of anti-colonial emotionalism now raging in the United Nations will do no damage to that organization "in the long run," there is no doubt that this manifestation has all Western governments seriously worried.

Dulles himself must have been a little shaky when, almost at the moment he was voicing the above opinion, India's Krishna Menon, acknowledged leader of the Arab-Asian bloc, now seemingly dominating the UN, voiced a need for international intervention toward settlement of the Formosan issue.

The prospect for more of the same in months ahead is heightened by reported deals by which 16 or more new members are to be admitted to the U.N., most of them either Communist or Arab-Asian.

As a result, the U.N. Assembly for the first time in history overrode a previous decision by its steering committee to schedule for floor debate the issue of Algerian independence.

The vote was 28 to 27 with the majority made up mostly of members of the Communist bloc and nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America, many of which have but recently emerged from colonial captivity.

On Monday, the same assembly, by vote of 31 to 18, placed on its agenda the dispute between Indonesia and the Netherlands over the future status of West New Guinea.

There is no semblance of United Nations authority to determine either of these issues. But, as to both of the disputes, the mere fact of outside interference could prove catastrophic.

Algeria is the central rock, without which the whole French empire in North Africa certainly would fall.

Votes now are being counted in Indonesia's first nationwide parliamentary election with indications that a combination of Communists and fellow travelers will displace the existing government, mainly composed of conservative Moslems.

As to each of these situations the main effect of United Nations debate is to more excite the condition of disorder.

The claim of the French, upon which they walked out of the U.N. assembly after its vote against them, is that Algeria is an integral part of France itself and therefore United Nations action is barred by the provision of its own charter against interference in domestic affairs of any of its members.

On its face, this French contention is well founded. Algeria has been integrated with France, including popular election of members of the Paris Parliament, for more than half a century. It is true also that never during that time has France dared to tempt an Algerian rebellion by removal of its military garrisons.

In more than one respect Algeria's status today is much like Southern Ireland's shortly before Britain gave it up. At the outbreak of World War I the British promised Ireland full home rule, but reneged before that status was attained.

Similarly, the French Parliament's "Statute of Algeria" in 1947 providing many new measures of independence, largely has been pigeonholed because of strong opposition by the Frenchmen who control most of Algeria's wealth.

Britain's back-pedaling as to Ireland set off the Easter rebellion of 1916. That uprising was summarily crushed and many of its leaders executed; but thereafter London's rule of Ireland never was the same.

The present trouble in Algeria dates back to France's repudiation of its promises to that dominion, stimulated more immediately by the violent methods used to suppress a revolt two months ago in the Algerian Department of Constantine.

On the heels of that conflict four members of the French Chamber of Deputies from Constantine journeyed to Paris to warn Prime Minister Faure that the time had come when nothing short of complete independence would be accepted by Algeria.

The startling feature of this mission was that all its Algerian participants previously had been strong advocates of full integration with the French mainland and that one of their number, Bendjeloul, had made a speech in the Chamber of Deputies only last July, strongly urging that course.

There was no League of Nations at the time of the Irish Easter rebellion, so there is no knowing whether its existence would have helped or hurt the Irish or the British at the time. There is scarcely any doubt, however, that U.N. meddling up to now has irritated, rather than appeased, the Algeria and New Guinea conflicts.

Hurricanes' Birthplace

By DAVID BARNETT

The Weather Bureau wants "rocket reconnaissance" of the most devastating foe to hit the United States mainland since the British burned Washington during the War of 1812.

The Navy scientist says the bureau has made a "formal proposal" for the collection of high-altitude atmospheric information by rockets during the hurricane seasons.

In a paper prepared for the Office of Naval Research, Otto E. Berg reveals how a two-stage Navy Aerobee rocket accidentally recorded the "unforecasted presence" of a hurricane over southern Texas and Mexico that subsequently invaded the southern United States.

One of the big difficulties in predicting hurricanes, according to Herome Namias, chief of the Weather Bureau's extended forecast section, involves undetected shifts in upper air currents.

The case of the Aerobee flight underscores how difficult accurate forecasts based primarily on surface winds can be.

Berg, of the atmosphere and astrophysics division, Naval Research Laboratory, relates that the lab has been taking pictures from high-flying rockets for almost 10 years. The main objective is to obtain from the pictures an accurate check of the rocket's orientation in space during its flight. For this reason, he notes, it is desirable that the pictures taken by rocket-borne cameras show recognizable features on the surface of the earth.

Such features, obviously, will be most evident when skies are clear. Thus the rockets are seldom fired when cloud coverage exceeds 10 per cent.

Last Oct. 5, there were scattered clouds over the New Mexico desert but the area directly over the launching site was clear, so the rocket was fired as scheduled.

The primary purpose of the test was achieved, but the pictures showed something more. When 90 enlargements from a 16-millimeter movie camera, carried aloft by the rocket, were put together, they showed a hurricane, with its spiral tentacles, covering an area of more than 1,000 miles in diameter.

Berg states: "These pictures mark the first time that such a story has been photographed from an altitude sufficient to show the detailed structure of a storm over a large area."

Usually, photographic mapping of cloud formations is done by airplanes.

But Berg notes that his system "is not completely effective in Hurricane studies, chiefly because of the plane's limited altitude, which is slight above hurricane cloud formations."

The Aerobee pictures were taken from an altitude of 100 miles. The mosaic, made of the pictures, showed an area of 1,250,000 square miles, the largest area of the earth ever contained in a single continuous mosaic effectively taken from one point.

Berg relates that meteorologists pointed out the pictures could give them information about the hurricane in advance of evidence from regular weather stations.

The storm when captured on pictures, the paper notes, was entirely a high-altitude disturbance with little or no related surface winds. It adds:

Actually, the surface winds were easterly and of nominal velocity during the time that the storm was developing to major proportions overhead."

Harnessing The Delaware

By RAYMOND MOLEY

The valley of the Delaware River is one of the richest, most populous, and vitally important areas in the world. Since it involves the vital interests of four states, the development of the river itself has long been a task which logically should be an interstate job.

Delaware is deeply interested in regulating the flow of the river so that its lower reaches will not be polluted by the industry farther north and by tide water from below. Pennsylvania has a vital interest in the control of the river that the danger of floods will be lessened and also that its water can be used by the state's cities and industries. New York City wants more and more water for its population. And New Jersey is concerned with all these purposes.

Nineteen years ago there was created an interstate commission, composed of representatives of the four interested states, to draw plans and to promote interstate action. For convenience this commission was called Incoodel. One of the policies of which Incoodel was most proud was its determination that the comprehensive development of the river, costing in the neighborhood of 50 million dollars, should be paid for by the states to be benefited.

Except for minor aspects of the plan falling directly within the responsibility of the federal government, the states wanted no help from Washington.

All went well for some years in the development of the program, and finally the time came for action. The legislatures of New Jersey and Delaware passed the legislation necessary for the participation of those states in a four-way compact. New York indicated that it was prepared to follow. Pennsylvania, under the leadership of Gov. Duff, was ready to act.

And then Duff was succeeded by Gov. Fine, and Pennsylvania began to find excuses for inaction. A year passed and then another.

The City of New York, desperate for more water from the river, secured the aid of its state government in getting its case before the Supreme Court of the United States and was given permission to tap the river for new water. New Jersey also was granted permission to take more.

Pennsylvania as permitted to build certain dams on the stretch of the river between itself and New Jersey. But these activities of individual states cannot prevent or make unnecessary a larger development by interstate action.

Meanwhile, the states of New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania all elected Democratic governors. The Interstate Commission (Incoodel) is still alive, however, and is manifesting some optimism that Pennsylvania's Gov. Leader will be more effective than was Gov. Fine. A general meeting is being held to survey the chances of interstate action. It will be interesting to see whether these Democratic governors will turn to the federal government for help or will assert the traditional policy of their party and work out the problem at the state level.

Once Over

Airwave Addict's Dream

The World Series was over. But Phineas Phann, who had followed every game by airwave, was still feeling the commercials and had a sensation of being up to his ears in blades. Struggling vainly to get free, he collapsed.

Everything went black and Phineas had a wonderful dream. In it he was watching on the screen a series game from a baseball never-never land, and what a lift it gave him! For the ball park looked like the debris after an explosion in a hair-mattress factory. Everybody was BEARDED! Not a fan had whiskers under three and a half feet long and they were in all styles, shapes and colors, even two-tone models. Nobody thought about shaving equipment.

THE BALLPLAYERS, too, were completely unshaven. There was no way of telling whether they had tender skins. The matter wasn't even mentioned! Phineas was fresh from a series in which it was his impression somebody had plugged shaving even as Gladys Gooding sang, "The Star Spangled Banner," and mentioned that Francis Scott Key had written it when free from five o'clock shadow. Now there was a loud booing and a famous player was being taken in tow by police.

"What's happening?" asked Phineas Phann. "That's So and So," replied a TV fan who looked like both Smith Brothers. "He was told not to show up with a smooth face. He got barred from organized baseball last month not only for shaving often but for indorsing a razor. It was his second offense, too. Last year they sent him to Shreveport for playing with no stubble on his face and telling the fans how it helped his game."

"Served him right," said Phineas, happier than he had ever been following a baseball telecast.

NOW THE GAME BEGAN....The pitcher, a great hairy outpaw with a beard that fell to his waist, fanned three in a row. "But can he go the distance?" asked Phineas. "I don't think he's got the whiskers for nine innings," replied his friend. "Let's not expect too much."

"One inning with whiskers and no mention of shaving is pretty wonderful," sighed Phineas.

Then the very incredibility awakened him and he was back in a world of realities. Out of the past came the announcer's, "It's a homer!...It's over the roof! Well it just shows that it pays to keep in shape by being particular about your appearance, getting the right kind of shave, etc. etc." Phineas groaned and slipped back among the razor blades.

France has taken out Pinay but it can put in Chevalier.

The "Hecyloons" has been extra funny, but loses sparkle and laughs through pre-packaged filming. The audience laughter, always obviously genuine, the ad libs and the boners of a live show helped create and sustain the comic mood. On film these are lost. We got the feeling Jackie had become the tycoon rather than the performer.

The "Heidi" of the book got so lost in the TV presentation that she couldn't have been saved from those Alpine Passes by St. Bernard dogs.

If President Eisenhower wants some extra cheering dope on the return to form after a ticker attack he might consider the case of Frank Stevens, famous caterer, who has had three and is still busy as a beaver in a business that keeps him in the exciting fields of racing, baseball and football. Frank had his first attack four years ago, but hopped back amid the tumult and the shouting, repeating the routine after two subsequent attacks. And doctors say excitement, energy and emotion must be avoided!!!

No. 12—Listen To Your Heart

Parenthood Without Hokum

By HOWARD WHITMAN

If the psychologist and psychiatrist know so much, why don't they solve their own problems? Many times this question has been posed during the last 20 years, the era of the experts.

It has never been satisfactorily answered but some new light was thrown on it in a talk I had with Dr. Stanley E. Wimberly, professor of psychology at the University of Florida.

He said, "When my wife came home from the hospital after the birth of our daughter, she consulted me professionally for the first time."

"What advice did you give her?" I inquired.

"I told her that no psychologist knows enough to tell a mother how to rear her baby," Dr. Wimberly replied. "I simply said to my wife, 'If you're in doubt about something, consult your own instincts first. Then if you're still in doubt, we'll talk about it.'"

THIS IS THE NEW mood in psychology. Somewhere, somehow, amid all the expertizing of the last two decades, the realization has finally broken through that the Creator, in designing the human being, was also quite an expert.

Isn't it inconceivable that He would give to man and woman the ability to create children without also giving them the ability to rear and nurture them?

Today more and more experts are saying to mothers and fathers with problems, "Look inside yourself for the answer. Listen to your heart." And this is not bad psychology, for it was Sigmund Freud himself who said that in the little things he followed his head but in the big things he always followed his heart.

We are moving out of the age of confusion, with one expert saying one thing, another expert saying something else, and a third expert contradicting both of them. As one father put it, "There advice was so scrambled I got to calling them egg-heads."

A counselor working with young mothers sent this report to the U.S. Children's Bureau in Washington: "I find mental hygiene circles talking about mothers feeling inadequate due to the number of things we expect of a mother."

This in part is true, especially of mothers who have gone to psychiatrists or who have read several books on mental hygiene. I frequently have to tell them to put away all books and rely on their own good judgment, usually stating, "You are an intelligent young girl, normal, and have a normal baby; enjoy it and let your mother's instinct take care of a great many of your questions."

IN A SEMINAR for youth workers at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., a speaker said—perhaps only partly in jest—"God bless the man who marries the woman who cannot read, for she will rear her children naturally."

In fairness to the experts, it must be recognized that much has been written which has been extremely sound and helpful. Perhaps the trouble is simply that a good hand has been overplayed. As Gertrude Goller of the Child Study Association of America put it in a recent report:

"As inevitably happens with new findings, in each era some people jumped on the bandwagon too wholeheartedly and applied these suggestions on child care indiscriminately—and often with unhappy results for both parents and children."

The greatest harm to parents has been to destroy their self-confidence. Juvenile Court Judge William G. Gardiner of St. Petersburg, Fla., declared, "Parents come into court and they say helplessly, 'We don't know what to do, Judge.' They're confused."

"The experts have said, 'We'll do it for you'—and left the parents feeling inadequate and incompetent. The privilege of parenthood has been taken away from these people. They have been made to feel that every 'expert' knows better than the child's own mother and father."

A PEDIATRICIAN with the U.S. Children's Bureau told me that building up parents' confidence was one of her biggest jobs. She said, "The questions they ask reflect their feelings of inadequacy—Should I put on the baby's cotton cap or wool cap? One mother wanted to know if she had to take the baby to the pediatrician to have its fingernails cut."

All the expertizing has made a great many mothers, and fathers, too, feel they are doing something wrong every time they turn around. One conscientious mother asked me plaintively, "Don't you think it's important for parents to know when they do something that's normal?"

Indeed it is. And the new trend in child-care quite frankly recognizes a new expert: the parent. Individualism is the new keynote. Be yourself! And let your children be themselves, too. At the Family Service Society of New Orleans, Director Elizabeth Porter declared, "We have to tell parents not to put their children in straightjackets. They don't have to be like the other kids in the neighborhood, or worse, like the kid in the book."

PARENTS DON'T HAVE to be like the ones in the book, either. Those who come with their youngsters to the Child Psychiatric Clinic at the Evanston, Ill., Hospital are given ample dosage of the new drug—confidence. Here is the prescription as Dr. Elizabeth Levin gave it:

"Parents should be themselves a little more. They are too prone to make themselves over into something they have read about. They can enjoy their children more and be more effective parents if they act naturally and do not strain so much to match some preconceived pattern. What more parents need is more respect for themselves as individuals."

Dr. James Bard, Cleveland psychologist, told about a father who was puzzled about what to do to stop his boy from putting his finger in wall plugs. Instead of giving him a pat answer, which he couldn't honestly do, Dr. Bard asked the man to list all the possible measures which could be taken.

The father said that, well, he might (1) put furniture in front of the plugs so the child couldn't get at them, (2) slap the child's hands when he reached for the plugs, (3) give him a punishment such as sending him up to his room, (4) talk the whole thing over with the child, (5) put covers on the wall plugs.

"Which do you prefer?" Dr. Bard asked.

"Well, I prefer which ever way is the right way," the father replied.

"But," Dr. Bard patiently explained, "the way you prefer is the right way. It is the right way for you."

PARENTS ARE NO LONGER to be poured into a mold. It has been learned that good parenthood doesn't tell that way. Instead the parent must have confidence in his own instinctive feelings and freedom to express himself spontaneously.

A parent who is a shouter must shout and a whisperer must whisper. It is just as wrong to say that shouting is bad for children as it is to say that whispering is bad.

From mountains of studies and oceans of data amassed in the era of the experts, one fact still stands paramount to them all—children need to be loved. If you love them it doesn't much matter whether you shout or whisper. One psychologist went even further—"You can bribe them, threaten them, even beat them. It's all O.K. if you love them," he said.

The new trend is to keep the expert where he belongs—always on tap but never on top. Certainly most parents may occasionally need advice, just as a businessman may occasionally need the expert advice of a lawyer or an accountant. But no businessman wants the experts to move in and run his business for him, and neither should any parent.

ONE REASON for the crisis in parenthood today is that so many parents have what one psychologist called "a distrust of their own values." They are not sure just what they want to pass on to their children. They are either afraid to set their own standards or they lack confidence in what they believe.

Robert H. Scott, director of youth services in Michigan, listed "parental leadership" as one of the greatest needs of youth today. "We speak a great deal of discipline," he said, "but if we analyze the word we find that it comes from the same root as the word disciple. Through creative leadership, parents make disciples of their children. They give them values, ideals and moral principles to live by and to pass on."

In this, there is no one—however expert—who can take the parent's place.

Unscored-On Notre Dame Defeats Miami 14-0 For 3rd Win

UCLA Blasts Oregon State

SMU Beats Missouri, Houston Tops Detroit

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
The Associated Press

Notre Dame's particular penchant for producing outstanding quarterbacks still is in operation. This time it's Paul Hornung, who Friday night stamped himself as an apt replacement for the graduated All-American, Ralph Guglielmi, by directing the Fighting Irish to their third straight victory with a 14-0 victory over Miami of Florida.

A crowd of 75,685—the largest ever in the Orange Bowl—saw Hornung take the Irish to the air for the first time this season while Coach Tercy Brennan's stout line retained their unscored upon record.

Hornung convinced the Hurricanes, who were stung by their own fumbles, with a pair of touchdown passes. An 11-yard flip to Gene Kapish put the Irish in the lead in the first minute of the second quarter. Then Hornung wrapped it up with a 32-yard toss to Aubrey Lewis in the third period.

It was the 11th straight victory for Brennan, in his second season at the Notre Dame helm, and cracked Miami's 10-game home field winning streak.

In other top games Friday night, once-beaten UCLA, ranked No. 7 behind the fifth place Irish in this week's Associated Press poll, bolstered its bid for another Pacific Coast conference title by beating Oregon State 38 to 0.

Southern Methodist won its first of the season while handing Missouri its fourth straight defeat, 13-6; Houston beat Detroit in a Missouri Valley Conference contest, 7-0 on a third period quarterback sneak by Jim Dickey, and the Citadel edged Richmond 14-12 for its first Southern Conference victory since 1953 on Conrad Tuza's two conversions.

Sophomore Charley Johnson hauled in a pass for one TD and scooted 40 yards for the other as SMU choked off the Tigers just short of the goal line time and again.

Michigan and Oklahoma figured in two of this afternoon's top attractions.

The Wolverines, ranked second in the nation, faced sixth-ranked Army at Ann Arbor while Oklahoma went up against Texas in their traditionally tough tussle in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

A capacity crowd of 97,239 bought tickets for the Michigan-Army game at Ann Arbor, although a competing attraction at nearby East Lansing featured Michigan State against Stanford, the club that upset Ohio State last week.

Oklahoma carried a 21-game winning streak, currently the longest in college football, into a game that Coach Bud Wilkinson called "our hardest so far this season" in spite of a comparatively unimpressive Texas record. The Sooners are rated No. 3 in the AP poll.

For the other ranking teams, today's games were strictly fraternal strife. Top-rated Maryland, after establishing its reputation with victories over Missouri, UCLA and Baylor, entered Atlantic Coast Conference competition against battered Wake Forest.

Georgia Tech, No. 4, met surprising Louisiana State with both teams seeking a victory to stay on top in the Southeastern Conference; Wisconsin, No. 9, had it out with Purdue for the temporary Big Ten lead and Southern California battled Washington for its place in the Pacific Coast Conference.

UCLA Starts Slow In 38-0 Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For the better part of two quarters it was a well fought ball game. Then the talent-laden UCLA football team got down to work and at the end an outmanned but dead-game Oregon State outfit had been well-loped, 38-0.

This was Friday night in a Pacific Coast Conference affair played before a surprisingly large crowd of 37,64.

Oregon State, unbeaten and unscored on in two encounters—including its upset over Stanford, which in turn toppled the 1954 national champions, Ohio State—made errors and UCLA promptly took advantage of them.

UCLA played it close, relying on a safe, crunching ground attack that rolled up 275 yards, thanks to tailback Sam Brown and blasting Bob Davenport, the fullback. Brown scored two touchdowns, Davenport one.

Coach Red Sanders kept his highly publicized rookie passing specialist, Ronnie Knox, pretty much under wraps until the final eight minutes of the game. Then Knox came off the bench to complete five out of seven for 56 yards and a touchdown.

Jackson TKOs Layne After Slow Start

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP)—When the fight was over, the familiar cry of "We Want Marciano" rang through Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson's dressing room.

But it had a hollow sound. "We want the big one now," cried Lippe Briedbart, Jackson's manager. "The Hurricane is ready."

Jackson, staring silently at the floor, just grunted. The tireless New York Negro had just stopped the flabby Rex Layne on an eye cut in the sixth round of their nationally televised fight Friday night, but there was little in his performance to indicate that he's even remotely ready to challenge the likes of Marciano.

Layne, a chubby Utah punching bag, pushed Jackson around for four rounds, fooling him constantly with "sucker" right hand leads.

The Hurricane was a mere breeze in the early going. He seemed confused by Layne's unorthodox, lunging punches. He even failed to respond to his corner's threat of "Get out there and fight, or you'll have to start working for a living."

Finally, Jackson started hitting in the fifth round. By this time, the pudgy Layne, huffing and puffing, was an easy target. Jackson opened a cut over his right eye and the blood turned Layne's face to a crimson mask.

His corner did a quick patch job on the eye between rounds but Jackson's first punch of the sixth opened it again. Referee Lou Handier called a halt after 25 seconds, with Layne blinded by his own blood.

Layne was ahead on the scorecards of two of the three officials. The Associated Press also had him ahead.

The 27-year-old battler had the usual loser's lament after it was over. "I wasn't hurt," he said. "I get cut in all my fights. I could have gone on."

It was Jackson's 9th straight victory, bringing his overall mark to 25-3-1. Layne's record now reads 49-14-3, with his last 3 starts resulting in defeats.

Layne weighed a substantial 202 for his 5-11 frame, compared to Jackson's 194½. A modest crowd of 3,109 paid a gross gate of $4,505.20.

Lawless May Capture Belmont Futurity

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Lawless, the "tall, thin man" from Virginia, may bring the Old Dominion its first Belmont Futurity since 1934 if he can overcome an unfavorable No. 1 inside post position.

Fourteen colts and the speedy filly, Doubledogdare, were entered for the rich 2-year-old classic that could produce a big horse for the 1956 Kentucky Derby.

Probable favorite at 52 in the 6½ furlong dash down the Widener Straightaway is the C. V. Whitney entry of Career Boy and Head Man, two of the 10 stakes winners in the class of field.

Then, there are such highly regarded juveniles as Mrs. Anson Bigelow's Nail, the Maine Chance Farm's Busher Fantasy, Elmdorf Farm's Prince John, and the lone filly, Doubledogdare from the Claiborne Farm.

Lawless is a brown son of By Jimmy-Little Redel, from the Brookmeade Stable of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, Upperville, Va. The colt is a full brother to Bold, who won the 1951 Preckness for Mrs. Sloane and was killed a year later by a lightning bolt while grazing on the farm.

Horsemen were giving special attention to Lawless because heavy rains have left the track sloppy, and the Brookmeade colt finds this just duck soup. He won at Saratoga, and again at Belmont on the straightaway, both time in slop.

Lawless at 8-1 will be ridden by Bill Boland, who won the 1953 Futurity with Porterhouse, a Kentuckybred. Porterhouse, however, was owned by the Llangollen Farm and raised in Virginia. The last Virginiabred to win it was Chance Sun 20 years ago.

If all 15 start, this 66th Futurity will be the second richest with a gross purse of $125,125, the winner netting $100,425. Whichever earned $105,730 in 1929. Today's race will be televised and broadcast (ABC) at 2:15 p.m. CST.

Caltech Wins First Tilt In 27 Games

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (AP)—Caltech's brainy but not so brawny Engineers defeated Cal Poly of San Dimas, 19-0, Friday night to halt one of the longest losing streaks in collegiate football.

It was the first win for Caltech in the last 27 games. The Engineers' last victory came in 1951. Caltech is coached by Bert Labrucherie, who once led UCLA to the Rose Bowl. He actually says he prefers small school coaching.

Leetonia-Minerva Game Set Tonight

The Minerva - Leetonia game, scheduled to be played at Leetonia Friday night, was postponed because of rain.

The contest will be held tonight at 7:45 on the Bears' field. Leetonia has a 1-2 won-lost record this year.

Purdue Meets Wisconsin For Big 10 Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—A couple of top intersectional battles add spice to today's Big Ten football card which features Wisconsin at Purdue in a bid for first place in the conference.

The winner of the Badger-Boller-maker contest grins undisputed possession of the Big Ten lead since the only other team with a 1-0 record, Michigan, will be busy in what could turn out to be the "game of the week."

The Wolverines take on Army's Cadets at Ann Arbor while Stanford, victory over Ohio State, tries to make it two in a row against Michigan State at East Lansing.

In three other conference games, Illinois is at Ohio State, Indiana is at Iowa and Minnesota invades Northwestern.

An aerial battle is expected at Lafayette where Purdue's Len Dawson matches talents with Wisconsin's Jim Miller and Jim Halska. The winner in this game will be in an excellent spot to go all the way.

Stanford, still bubbling over its 6-0 upset victory over Ohio State, might find Michigan State a tougher foe. The Spartans lost a 14-7 battle to Michigan last week because of a couple of big mistakes. They might not repeat such errors against the Indians.

Michigan is out to get Army since the Cadets have decisively whipped the Wolverines in their last five battles. This could be Michigan's year.

Generally rated the top team in the Big Ten, Michigan is primed for the game but the Army is not expected to be shooting blanks.

Both teams are undefeated. Illinois and Ohio State will be getting their first taste of conference action. The Illini have been a surprise winning their first two games with a powerful ground attack which the Buckeyes must stop if they are to open defense of their title successfully.

Indiana and Iowa both have suffered one conference loss and the loser here will virtually be out of the race. The Hawkeyes are two touchdown favorites but Indiana has been improving rapidly.

A couple of have-nots, Minnesota and Northwestern, will be seeking an initial triumph. Minnesota has been installed a one touchdown favorite but this could be the week the Wildcats come to life.

In an outside game, Marquette is host to Kansas State and the Warriors are expected to win their second straight.

Irish Score Twice On 4th Down Passes

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—It was a typical Notre Dame team. They scored twice on fourth-down passes. That's what I call coming through in the clutch.

This was the comment of Miami's downhearted football coach, Andy Gustafson, after his Hurricanes had fallen before the fighting Irish Friday night 14-0. It was a game for which Gustafson had pointed his forces for two years.

When Notre Dame couldn't get the job done on the ground, the Irish took to the air for the first time this season and big Paul Hornung got them their 11th straight victory with touchdown throws of 11 yards to Eugene Kapish and 32 yards to Aubrey Lewis.

An alert defense stifled every threat by Miami's hard-pressing attackers, who drove inside the Irish 15-yard line on four occasions and once fell just two yards short of scoring the year's first touchdown against Notre Dame.

Gustafson and his quarterback, Mario Bonafiglio, made the serious mistake of thinking they could ram the football down the Irish throats.

In the first minute of play, after Mike Hudock had startled Notre Dame by blocking Hornung's attempted punt at the Irish 23, Bonafiglio sent Don Bosseler into the center four times in a row. The big fullback failed by inches to make the first down.

Despite this convincing show of inside defensive strength by Notre Dame, Bonafiglio kept trying to break his runners through. In the third quarter, with a first down on the Irish seven, he again called for four straight shots at the middle and lost the ball on the two.

It was odd strategy for a Miami team which in the past has run wide option plays with outstanding success.

Capital, Youngstown Record Grid Wins

By The Associated Press

Capital University scored its third straight victory of the season last night with a 37-0 triumph over winless Marietta.

In other games involving Buckeye teams, Kent State turned back Baldwin-Wallace 33-2, and Youngstown outclassed West Chester, Pa. State Teachers 39-6. Both tilts were nonconference affairs.

Halfback Earl Metz tallied three times for Capital which piled up a 28-0 halftime margin despite a muddy field.

Youngstown exploded for five touchdowns in seven minutes of the second quarter for its second victory against one loss.

Kent overcame a 2-0 first quarter deficit for its first win of the season.

Wants Congress Probe Of College Football TV

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Rep. Patrick Hillings (R-Calif.) wants Congress at its next session to investigate the telecasting of national collegiate football.

"I believe an investigation would be healthy for all concerned—the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Assn.), the school members, the networks and the sponsors," Hillings said Friday.

Hillings, a member of the House Committee on the Judiciary which delves into monopoly and anti-trust laws, said he has received many complaints on the NCAA's television program.

3 U.S. Athletes Run Marathon For Funds

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Three American athletes ran a simulated Olympic Games marathon through Hollywood Friday night to kick off the final week of the Los Angeles area Olympic Fund drive.

Bob McMillen, Mal Whitfield and Charles Capozzoli, all of whom were in the 1952 Olympics, carried torches from Hollywood High School along Hollywood boulevard. Vine street and Sunset boulevard to a night club where a big search light was turned on, symbolizing the Olympic Games torch.

Packers, Colts Play Tonight

To Determine NFL Western Leader

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

A record crowd of 40,000 is expected in Milwaukee tonight as Alan Ameche, Wisconsin's favorite son, makes his pro football debut before the home folks. As an added attraction, the National Football League game between the Baltimore and Green Bay Packers also will determine the Western Conference leader.

The fact that Baltimore and Green Bay are in the thick of the conference title scrap, an unexpected attendance booster for both clubs, is of secondary importance in Milwaukee. The drawing card is Ameche, the big rookie from the University of Wisconsin—where he was an All-American fullback last season—who has been one of the factors in Baltimore's bid for the booty.

Going into the game, both the Colts and the Packers have 2-0 records after serving as the stepping stones for previous Western Conference champs. To give you some idea of the big change in their fortunes, both clubs already have humbled the Detroit Lions, three times Western Conference kings.

Except for the possibility of a tie, one of the two new powers will rule the conference — over night, at least. At present, Baltimore and Green Bay share a three-way tie with the Los Angeles Rams for first place. The Rams, hurtling with injuries to Tank Younger, and Charley Toogood, play the Lions at Detroit Sunday.

That game's a make-or-break test for Detroit, which has a 0-2 record. The other Western Conference game sends the San Francisco 49ers against the Chicago Bears tomorrow at Chicago. Both are 0-2.

The Eastern Conference plays its games Sunday, with the surprising other unbeaten NFL entry, at home to the Chicago Cardinals, who also have caused a stir with a 1-1 record.

Washington, on top for the first time in a good many seasons, got there by trouncing the Cleveland Browns and then edging the Philadelphia Eagles by one point last week.

The Eagles and Browns, both with 1-1 marks after being tabbed the Eastern title favorites in preseason guesses, battle at Cleveland. New York's winless Giants are at Pittsburgh to meet the 1-1 Steelers.

Blue Devils Eke Out Win Over Bulldogs

LISBON — Lisbon High School posted its fourth straight win of the season as the Blue Devils eked out a 6-0 victory over East Palestine at Lisbon Friday night.

An onside kickoff to start the second half set up the lone TD in the Tri-County League game. It also marked the fourth straight win for Bud Bucher's Blue Devils. Lisbon will go after its fourth League victory and fifth win of the season Friday night against undefeated Sebring.

The outcome of next week's battle may well decide the Tri-County League championship.

Meanwhile Coach Bob Kelley's East Palestine Bulldogs suffered their third defeat of the season. East Palestine has won one game but all three defeats were in League action. East Palestine steps out of League competition next week in a battle with Wellsville.

After a scoreless first half played in a heavy rain, Lisbon tried an onside kickoff to open the third period. The kick worked as the Blue Devils recovered the ball on the East Palestine 43-yard line.

Quarterback Laurie Novak passed to end Keith Wolfe who carried 13 yards to the 30.

With Bill Minton and Gary Johnson alternating in carrying the ball, Lisbon reached the one-yard line. At this point Novak sneaked over for the lone touchdown of the game. End Bob Adam's attempted place ment was blocked.

Twice during the game East Palestine held Lisbon drives, once on the one and another time on the eight. East Palestine got to Lisbon's 28, 22 and 25 but all three times lost the ball on fumbles.

N. Springfield Defeated By Clippers 38-7

The Columbiana Clippers chalked up victory number three against one loss when they rode over New Springfield 38-7 in a one-sided contest played at Columbiana Friday.

Don Greiner scored first for Columbiana in the first quarter on a 43-yard run. In the second period Ken Warwick plunged over from the one-yard mark for the Clippers' second score, and Randall Bailey tallied again before the period ended on an 80-yard run.

Bailey also scored in the third frame on a 25-yard run, and Sam Douglass made the Clippers' fifth TD from five yards back. A 25-yard pass from John Murphy to Jim Poulton in the final frame accounted for the final Columbiana touchdown.</

Sebring Ministers Rap Village Bingo

SEBRING, Ohio (AP)—"Bingo is the kindergarten of the gambling fraternity," a clergyman told the Sebring Village Council here last night. He voiced a ministerial association protest against bingo games sponsored by the Volunteer Fire Department.

The Rev. Roland Showalter, association president and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, urged the council to withdraw permission to hold the bingo games in a municipal building.

While Council was receiving the protest and referring it to Village Solicitor John Reddy, now on vacation, the fourth weekly Fire Department bingo game was in progress next door.

Fire Chief John Watson told Council the department had spent only $15,692 on equipment in seven years, and is in immediate need of $16,000 for additional equipment. The volunteers are trying to raise the money in bingo games at which their ladies auxiliary serve refreshments.

Bingo games operated for private profit are illegal in Ohio, and some cities, notably Cleveland, have even more stringent local regulations which ban the game altogether.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The governor of Oklahoma isn't very happy over a press agent's idea to have him ride a white horse along Broadway in New York City next Tuesday.

Gov. Raymond Gary is to appear in a parade in conjunction with the world premiere of the film, "Oklahoma!" "I'll talk to them about riding a horse when I get there," the governor said Friday. "I sure want to see the horse first."

Argentine Churches Get Tax Freedom

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Eduardo Lonardi signed a divorce Friday night reinstating a law granting church properties of all denominations freedom from taxation.

The law had been repealed by a Peronista-dominated congress in May, at the height of the feud between President Juan D. Peron and the Roman Catholic Church.

THE KINDERGARTEN Mothers Club held its first meeting of the school year in the allpurpose room

It was decided to have work on projects begin at 7:30 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month, the business meeting to begin at 8. The project committee for the Halloween party is Mrs. D. C. Perrin, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, Mrs. Earl Kyser, Mrs. J. C. Miller, Mrs. Lila Garber and Mrs. Kit Schlag. Lunch was served by Mrs. Albert Wickline, Mrs. Richard Wenderoth, Mrs. Robert White, Mrs. James Weber and Mrs. Theima Young.

STATE PATROL inspection test gave the three busses serving Columbiana exempted village school district top ratings for the absence of defects. Two of the busses are owned by the board of education and the third is privately owned. They transport 464 kindergarten, first, second and third grade pupils from the area south of Salem St. to the new Joshua Dixon elementary school building.

The Columbiana Square Dance Club will dance tonight in Odd Fellows' hall.

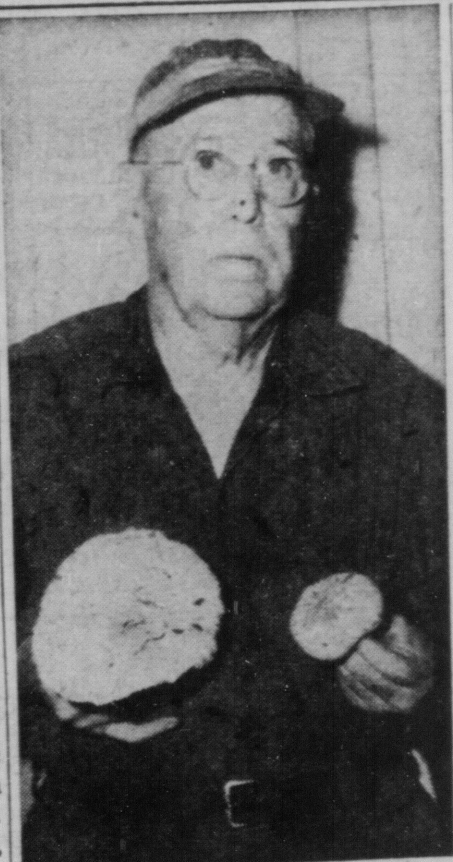

BOOSTER CLUB sponsored a trip of the Columbiana Clippers, cheer leaders and coaches, about 50 in all, to Columbus today for the O.S.U. Illinois game. Secretary Wilder Forchert of the Boosters requests that membership cards sent out to 1,000 residents of the area be returned promptly.

winches to trails where they are transported six miles to a University of Wyoming summer science lodge. There medical experts are attempting to identify the remains.

Kin Aid Recovery
Many of the victims' next-of-kin were flown to Laramie by United and are taking part in the recovery operations at their own insistence.

Only expert Alpinists are allowed to negotiate the final few hundred yards up a nearly perpendicular cliff to the crash scene, about 75 feet from the summit of the peak. Bodies are strewn with the wreckage along a 50-yard scorched path.

The pilot, C. C. Cooke, 34, of Menlo Park, Calif., had flown the route hundreds of times during his 12 years service with United. The plane which left New York Wednesday night, departed from Denver for Salt Lake City more than 80 minutes behind schedule.

There was speculation Cooke was trying to make up some of the time by taking a "short cut" across the Snowy Range or turbulent winds pulled him off course. The plane left Denver at 6:3 a.m. MST and 30 minutes later smashed into the peak.

Officials said the plane was not overloaded. Its normal passenger load is 64 adults. It cruises at 240 miles an hour—presumably the speed it was going when it slammed into the peak.

3 Motorists Cited For Drunken Driving

Three drivers arrested Friday night and this morning by police on drunken driving charges are awaiting hearings before Mayor Dean Crammer.

Harold H. Benner, 50, of Homeworth was cited at 8:15 p.m. Friday after his car struck a utility pole on E. Wilson St.

A passenger, Orrville Baker, 49, of Lisbon, sustained lacerations of the face and scalp in the mishap and was treated at City Hospital.

fundamental attack on the surpluses.

"We should seek an expansion of our livestock economy based on an expanded consumption of livestock products. Access now growing unneeded bread grains would thus be turned to production of feed."

Cautious Against Cuts

Speaking on the tax issue, the former Illinois governor cautioned against precipitate tax reduction, saying "tax reduction at the price of safety is not economy."

"I say let our opponents cry out for tax reduction at any price," Stevenson said. "But we are the party of compassion and the party of responsibility. We must at least inquire whether at this juncture there are things we want more than tax reduction. . . . A responsible political party has greater responsibilities than winning votes at any price."

On civil liberties, Stevenson asserted that "from the first wild utterances of a man from Wisconsin in 1950 there has been mounting pressure on Americans' civil liberties — the loyalty of servants of American government has suffered unparalleled attacks. Democrats generally have been slandered in a manner unprecedented in our political history."

"The Republican strategists who resorted to such measures must be made to realize, if they are still inclined to these extremes, that what they are considering is the poisoning of democracy. . . . Speaking on international relations, Stevenson said:

"It must be recognized that the essence of the foreign policy of the nation are those of most of the Democratic party and at least one branch of the Republican party. . . ."

"It is important that the world know that the spirit expressed at Geneva represented much more than President Eisenhower's own beliefs. What he did—and did very well—to restore confidence in America's peaceful, cooperative purpose, a confidence which had been jeopardized too often by the bellicose words and gestures of some administration spokesmen. Once again the world must know what fills the hearts of the American people—the spirit of peace, the full realization that 'above all nations is humanity.'"

Adams, the President's chief deputy.

Nixon said before leaving from Washington that he hopes to announce early next week whether he will go ahead with his scheduled goodwill tour of the Middle East next month. The trip had been announced before Eisenhower's illness.

However he declined to say whether the matter would be brought up during his meeting with Eisenhower, or to tell what else the two might discuss.

Dr. White, who examined the President personally after the attack, is returning for a new examination and a round of consultations with bedside doctors today and Sunday.

It will be on the basis of these consultations that decisions will be made on the extent to which Eisenhower may gradually increase his schedule of conferences.

An uninterrupted series of medical bulletins this week reporting the president progressing "without complications," paved the way for the decision to set up Tuesday's conference with Dulles.

The conference, in the President's sickroom at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, will center around the agenda for the Geneva meeting of foreign ministers which Dulles will attend Oct. 27. Topics such as unification of Germany, European security, disarmament and increased East-West contacts are on the agenda.

Any other discussion, White House News Secretary James C. Hagerty said, will be limited to matters with which the President was familiar before he was stricken.

Nixon is coming here at the President's invitation.

Nixon's visit is described here as more social and personal than anything else. Doctors have ruled out any discussion of controversial or complicated problems of any nature for the time being.

Hagerty said the time of Dulles' call on the President Tuesday "will be determined by the doctors."

LISBON — The Courthouse dome project is completed.

V. E. Fickes, Warren steeplejack, added the finishing touches to the job yesterday when he painted the blindfold, scales and sword of the Roman goddess of justice, Justitia, a bright yellow.

Fickes began work on the Courthouse dome Aug. 3, assisted by his two sons, Larry and Bill. They ripped off the old metal, reinforced the dome with wood from carriage cases and put on new copper.

County Home To Hire Additional Nurses

Two more practical nurses will be employed at the Columbiana County infirmary near Lisbon to handle the increasing number of chronic disease cases there, Superintendent Ray T. Adam said this morning.

The nurses will reside at the infirmary, Adam said.

Only four nurses are on duty at the county home at the present time but more are needed, the superintendent explained, because the county lacks a hospital for indigents and they must be cared for at the home.

A total of 125 residents occupy the home.

tion but added bluntly that it must come on Russia's terms.

The Russian delegate recalled Russia's announced cut of 640,000 men in her armed forces and her agreement to return Porkkala naval base to Finland and suggested the West show similar good faith in reducing tensions.

Stassen said the Russians had left many questions unanswered on their own arms plans. Nutting went a step further and charged Sobolev had delayed the subcommittee's efforts by being "evasive and uncommunicative."

France's Jules Moch said the Eisenhower plan was obscure because Stassen failed to make clear whether it was a prelude to actual disarmament measures.

The United States has said repeatedly the plan was only intended as a first step toward building confidence which would lead to disarmament.

Stassen said a task force headed by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California Radiation Laboratories, "stands ready to consider any suggestion which any government or scientist may make to develop fully effective means of accounting for nuclear weapons material and the detection of nuclear weapons if they are concealed."
